

I don't need your fire

I don't need your eyes
Your lips, your smile
To know myself, your
Heart to love me

Your sweet words only
Tell me of old news
Things I already know
Have always known

Is what I'll say the day
You leave me in the rain
Because now I know this
You allow me to know this

With your light, your spirit
My flowers bloom brighter, my
Rivers are clear, the sunset
Pink like the liberty of my heart

But all that is in me
And I see the beauty in me
Whenever I look into the mirror
And see you smiling besides me

But from today onwards
I don't need your fire
I'll burn my own, and you'll be
Invited to warm yourself besides me
